Believed Germany Will Make Concession in Subm'ne Policy

TEUTONS REALIZE GRAVITY OF SITUATION CAUSED BY ATTACK ON SUSSEX AND WILL OBEY INTERNAL LAW.

(By International News Service.)

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Suggestions that Germany will shortly make material concessions to the United States in the submarine controversy, as we received in Teutonic circles today.

While nothing official has been given out by the War department, the belief prevails that Germany has at least realized the seriousness of the situation caused by the attacks on the Sussex and other vessels, and will issue orders to submarine commanders to sink ships without warning.

It is expected that Germany will also make reparation for attacks and give assurance that in the future she will obey international law.

GOV'T TO USE MOTOR TRUCKS IN PREFERENCE TO MEXICAN RAILWAY

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Indications that the War department will not depend on the use of the Mexican Northern railway to transport supplies to the American troops, was given by Secretary Baker today, when he asserted that more supplies can be sent by motor trucks than by railroad, owing to the poor condition of the railway. He announced that four additional companies of trucks would immediately be sent to the border. This makes 272 trucks in the Mexican service. The subscription list for the erection of a monument to the memory of Commodore C. G. Burgoyne was opened today, and those who desire to subscribe may do so by sending contributions either to Rowe's Jewelry store, Merchant's bank, First National bank or the Gazette-News office. The Gazette-News company will take pleasure in publishing the list of subscribers from day to day during the present week in the Daily News and after that publication is discontinued on April 8, the list will be carried in the Gazette-News, "your weekly paper."

The first subscribers to this fund were E. A. Burnette and H. M. Webb, of the Daily News' mechanical force, and, to use their own expression, these young men wanted to be the first to head the list as it was their idea that, as the late Commodore had made his fortune and began his career as a printer, that printers should be the first to subscribe.

Following is a list of subscribers up to the time of going to press:

DIED BY SUICIDE; BROTHER KILLED SELF SAME WAY

DAYTONA BEACH VISITOR TOOK POISON ON WAY HOME—FATHER AND GRANDFATHER ALSO SUICIDES.

J. P. Cummings, superintendent of the Lansing (Mich.) public schools, committed suicide in Chicago last Friday by the poison route. Mr. Cummings had been the guest of Smith G. Young, at Daytona Beach, for the past three months and departed for home Wednesday of last week. Shortly after his arrival at a Chicago hotel he took poison and died.

A strange coincidence is that a brother of the Lansing educator committed suicide in Grand Rapids, Mich., on the same day and at almost the same hour. The mania for suicide seems to be hereditary, for Mr. Cummings' father and his grandfather both took their own lives.

Mr. Cummings made many friends during his visit at Daytona Beach, and they all regret his unfortunate demise. He made several talks at public meetings during his sojourn in Florida.

TO HAVE BASKET PICNIC AT THE NAUTILUS CASINO

Mrs. Celeste Hinks, proprietor of the Magnolia hotel, and the guests of that popular hostelry have planned to enjoy a basket picnic at the Nautilus casino, Seabreeze, this evening and a very delightful time is anticipated.

Mrs. J. J. Bluffton and daughter, Mrs. Stanley Carnell, were in Daytona, and Seabreeze Tuesday afternoon from Ormond bidding good-bye to friends as they expected to leave today for Mrs. Buffton's home in Chicago, Ill. Mrs. Carnell will remain with her mother in Chicago for about two months before rejoining Mr. Carnell at their home in Ormond.

March Worst Month For This Trouble. How to Remove Easily.

There's a reason why nearly everybody freckles in March, but happily there is also a remedy for these ugly blemishes, and no one need stay freckled.

Simply get an ounce of othine, double strength, from your druggist, and apply a little of it night and morning, and in a few days you should see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the light ones have vanished entirely. Now is the time to rid yourself of freckles, for if not removed now they may stay all summer, and spoil an otherwise beautiful complexion. Your money back if othine fails.

Doing Somebody Good.

A traveling man who came this way recently goes to the post office of every town he makes and inquires about the letters which are held for postage. He pays the shortage and sends the letter on to the addressed. He says that he feels that he is doing somebody good, and he considers this a fine way to show real charity without letting his left hand know what his right hand doeth.

Convincing Argument.

One year when the youngsters of a certain Illinois village met for the purpose of electing a captain of their baseball team for the coming season it appeared that there was an excessive number of candidates for the post, with more than the usual wrangling. Youngster after youngster presented his qualifications for the post, and the matter was still undecided when the son of the owner of the ball field stood up. He was a small, snub-nosed lad, with a plentiful supply of freckles, but he glanced about him with a dignified air of controlling the situation. "I am going to be captain this year," he announced convincingly "or else father's old bull is going to be turned into the field." He was elected unanimously.

A Romance of Old Mexico

By F. A. MITCHEL

Years ago when Mexico was still a Spanish province there was a house party in one of the haciendas not far from the capital. The hostess was a young widow, and several of the young men guests were suitors for her hand. The lady, Senora Isabel Cardona, had given her heart to one of them, Don Miguel Benarez, but he did not know it, and another, Antonio Coral, a recent arrival from Madrid, who claimed to be a grandee, was his rival.

One afternoon when the hostess and a number of her guests had been strolling over the hacienda, that Senora Isabel might show them her fruits, upon passing up on to the veranda she missed a fan she had been carrying. It was a valuable article, being studded with jewels. A small party had arrived at the house, the others being strung along in the path they had come. Among those who were with the hostess was Antonio Coral.

"What will you give the finder of the fan?" he asked her.

"Anything I possess."

"Yourself?"

Senora Isabel looked at Benarez, who was also present, and with a spark in her eye and color in her cheeks replied:

"Yes."

Awfully went all the men present to look for the fan except Benarez, who remained standing beside Dona Conchita Poillado, with whom he had been walking. Senora Isabel looked at him, surprised that he did not enter the lists for her hand and, frowning, went into the house. After awhile those who had gone to search returned. Coral possessed the fan and had won the widow.

Evidently his being the finder instead of Benarez was a matter of great displeasure to Senora Isabel Cardona. She gave no sign of not accepting the situation, but no one was sure whether she would engage herself to Coral or not. Coral certainly had reason to suppose that she would, for she at once began to treat him as a fiance, especially when Benarez was present.

During the evening a party of the men guests, including both Coral and Benarez, were in the billiard room. Coral asked Benarez if he would play a game with him.

"I play only with honorable men," was the reply.

For a few moments there was the stillness of death in the room. Every one present knew that the insult required resentment, and it was generally supposed that something underlay the affair. Then Coral left the room.

The next morning Senora Isabel, who was troubled that one man should have won her hand when she wanted another, awoke very early and lay thinking what to do in the matter. Hearing men's voices under her window, she got out of bed and saw Benarez and another of her men guests leaving the house. The man with Benarez carried rapiers under his arm.

It was evident that something was about to happen, the cause of which she did not understand. Hurriedly putting on her clothes, she went out into a corridor, where she met Dona Conchita Poillado, to whom she told what she had seen.

"I can explain that," said Dona Conchita, "but will do so later. Hurry after these men if you wish to prevent bloodshed."

The two women ran downstairs and, meeting one of the Indian servants, asked him which way the gentlemen had gone. He told them, and they followed as fast as they could to an open space inclosed by surrounding trees, where a number of duels had been fought. There they found Benarez and Coral in their shirt sleeves, each holding a rapier, about to fight. On the ground were their seconds and several other of the men guests.

"Gentlemen," said the widow, "what right have you to mar my party in this way? What you are doing is an insult to me and all my other guests."

The two principals paused, but neither replied.

"I think," said Dona Conchita, "that I can explain it, and since the one other who should explain it seems not inclined to do so, I will tell what I know. Ysabel, when you took hold of mine yesterday afternoon you dropped your fan. It fell into tall grass. Don Antonio presently picked it up and put it in his pocket. Walking home with Senor Benarez, I told him what I had seen."

The statement occasioned a marked surprise in all present. It seemed impossible that a grande of Spain could have descended to so dishonorable an act. Coral turned pale and red by turns. Senora Cardona said to him:

"What have you to say, Don Antonio, to the charge?"

"I cannot dispute the word of a lady," was the reply, uttered in a voice scarcely audible and with a bow so low that his face was invisible.

"Put up your swords, gentlemen. Senor Benarez, will you accompany me back to the house?"

Benarez tossed his rapier toward his second and, with the hostess, followed by the others, except Coral, left the ground. Coral took the fact that he was not invited to return as a dismissal and went his way.

The widow married Benarez, and it was learned afterward that Coral was not known in Madrid, but was a gambler from Cordova, which place he had been obliged to flee, having killed a man under criminal circumstances.

ALLANDALE

A STRAIGHT FORWARD TALK

Do not deceive yourself with the thought that all real estate developments are alike. Speaking broadly, the man who buys in a hap-hazard sort of way is informed only to a limited degree as to the future of any proposition. His investment is not based on FAITH, but on a gambling chance. Our purpose is to implant the right idea in the mind of the investor as to the future of our proposition. We can only do this by informing you as to a few fundamentals and every SUCCESSFUL real estate development is planned, conducted and CARRIED TO A FINISH along similar lines as ours.

If we had the coin in the bank at the present moment to do all that we intend to do we might be tempted to spend it, although it would not be good policy, because A TOWN'S GROWTH MUST BE CONTINUOUS.

ALLANDALE has been bought and paid for; it is on a sound financial basis. We are alive to the splendid future that lies ahead of us and we want every home-builder who joins with us in the development of this property to share our prosperity.

WE HAVE THE FINEST LOCATION on the Halifax River for a town; the country back of us for miles is higher than the ridge along the river; we have planned for ideal drainage and sewerage; we have planned roads that will open up the back country — a good, all year round town MUST have a well developed country back of it. We have kept MODERN IMPROVEMENTS in view from the first and we did what we could to encourage the building of classy homes.

We have laid out another section to be known as HARBOR POINT where only residences will be allowed and with reasonable restrictions, and it will be the most exclusive residential section in the environs of Daytona.

We have our Main Idea always uppermost — TO ATTRACT PERSONS WHO ARE LOOKING FOR AN IDEAL PLACE OF RESIDENCE. These are fundamentals that insure the future success of

"SUNNY ALLANDALE"*KAISER DOES NOT SPECULATE, SAYS BERLIN STATEMENT

BERLIN, April 4.—American papers recently reported that Emperor William was one of the silent partners of Baron Constantine von Alvensleben, who made millions in mining enterprises and real estate speculations in British Columbia and the state of Washington during the last few years, but has probably been ruined by the war. This rumor is branded as a pure invention by the minister of the Prussian court.

The Kaiser never speculated and never owned any stock in any industrial corporation, domestic or foreign. His alleged interest in the Krupp works at Essen is a piece of fiction of the British and French press, it is authoritatively stated. The entire private fortune of the ruler is invested in real estate and his large tile and majolica factory at Cadinen.

The German princes as a rule never try their hand in speculations, because with few exceptions they are so wealthy that they have not much desire to increase their fortunes. King William II. of Wurttemberg dabbled in foreign stocks for a little while some years ago. He had very poor success, however, and sold his American and other shares after he had sunk half a million dollars or more.

No Danger of Forgetting. The eagle on the American dollar is doubtless put there to demonstrate money has wings.—Louisville Herald.

His Well Earned Popularity. "My small nephew, Peterkin Pluck, is deservedly the most popular child in our neighborhood," stated Cyrus K. Savage. "When there is company at the house and the lad's mother drags him out to elocute, read his latest school composition or whack off a classic on the piano with one finger, the young philanthropist absolutely refuses to come through with the performance, no matter how earnestly solicited."—Kansas City Star.

ADVISES HIS FRIENDS
TO REMAIN IN FLORIDA
K. I. Bernis, writing from Hanover,
Wis., April , for subscription to the Gazette-News, adds:
"The weather here is still cold and disagreeable and the roads so bad that it takes four horses to draw a small load. Would advise all of my northern friends who are enjoying the sunny south to stay there for a month or six weeks at least."

Dance to the Vibrations.
Vibrations of the floor caused by the playing of an orchestra are said to be sufficient for deaf persons to dance by. This at least is the explanation given for a dancing exhibition by deaf couples held in San Francisco recently. Others, not susceptible to these vibrations, fall into the rhythm by watching.

CORPORAL PUTS THIRTY COSSACKS TO FLIGHT

BERLIN, Apr. 4.—The German General staff reports that Corporal Letat of the Fifth Prussian Chasseurs has been decorated with the Iron Cross of the first class for exceptional bravery. The corporal recently accompanied a patrol of officers which was reconnoitering the Russian positions southwest of Baranovitchi. From a small hill the patrol discovered a detachment of about 150 Cossacks who were retiring before an infantry attack and came directly towards the height.

The German officers and their men dismounted to seek cover for they expected fight with the Russian cavalry. A moment later Corporal Legat discovered a Cossack who had reached the hill ahead of his comrades. Jumping on his horse again the corporal dashed after the enemy and killed him with a shot from his revolver.

In the meantime thirty other Cossacks had come up and the brave non-commissioned officer found himself surrounded. A shot from a Russian carbine shattered his jaw and he seemed lost, but he kept his nerve. Grabbing his lance with both hands he wildly swung it in a circle over his head and attacked the Cossacks. The Russians were so surprised by this unexpected resistance of a single man that they turned and fled in all directions.

YIDDISH NOW THE LANGUAGE OF POLAND

Sound Travels Far.

ARRANGE TO HAVE YARDS KEPT CLEAN

Chief French, of the fire department and the heads of the other departments of the city government are endeavoring to see to it that the property of winter residents and all vacant and idle property in the city is cleaned up and kept clean through the summer months. Recently several places that had been over run with brush and weeds for years have been put in good order. Many of the winter residents neglect to arrange to have their yards mowed and cleaned up while they are north. This gives the city an ill-kept appearance and is a source of annoyance and discomfort to the owners of adjacent property who live here throughout the year and keep their places in good order. Winter residents should arrange to have this work done during their absence or give the city officers authority to see that it is done.

EDMONDS PARTY TO MOTOR TO BALTIMORE

Richard H. Edmonds, editor of the Manufacturers' Record, Mrs. Edmonds, Howard L. Clark, Mr. Edmond's private secretary, and Mrs. Clark, who have spent the winter in Daytona, left this morning to motor back to Baltimore.

At Jacksonville they will be joined by Mr. Edmond's sister, Miss Mary Edmonds, who was with them all the winter until a few days ago, when she went to the metropolis to spend a few days. Mr. Edmonds' one diversion away from office work is motoring and he says that a good part of his editorial work is planned out while riding through the country, so that when evening comes on he is ready to dictate rapidly everything that he has formulated while motoring on a journey of this kind.

Mr. Edmonds and family are great enthusiasts on Florida and they expect to spend next winter in the state. "The habit of doing this," said Mr. Edmonds, "has such a hold on me that I would not know how to break it. It is the old story, 'you first get a habit and then the habit gets you.'

Mr. and Mrs. Edmonds have greatly enjoyed their stay here this winter, which was the second full season they had spent in Daytona, although they had visited this city in other seasons.

Mr. Edmonds, who has taken quite a fancy to Daytona, has given the city much advantageous publicity in his articles in the Manufacturers' Record which have been widely read and copied by papers throughout the country.

Mr. Edmonds and party have this season occupied Mrs. H. A. Caswell's residence on South Ridgewood avenue.

GERMAN CHANCELLOR SAYS NO AGGRESSIVE ACTION DESIRED AGAINST U. S.

(By International News Service.)

BERLIN, April 5.—That Germany made peace overtures to the Allies which were rejected, was admitted by Imperial Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg in a speech to the Reichstag. The peace offer was made last September. The speech was the most important since the war began. The chancellor intimated that Premier Asquith of England declined to discuss peace except on a basis that the German military be wiped out. The chancellor denied that Germany intended any aggressive action against the United States, or wanted to acquire territory in the Americas. He declared that the Poles, Belgians and other small nationalities must have an opportunity to develop along their own national lines.

COMMERCIAL CLUB DEPLORES DEATH OF COMMODORE

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED ON THE DEATH OF THE LATE CHARLES C. BURGOYNE BY COMMERCIAL CLUB ORGANIZATION.

The Commercial club, of Daytona, in regular session Tuesday evening adopted the following resolutions on the death of the late Commodore Charles C. Burgoyne:

"Whereas, an All Wise Providence has seen fit to remove from our midst our beloved member, C. G. Burgoyne,

"Whereas, the Commercial club of Daytona, and every member thereof, in his departure, sustained an irreparable loss, and,

"Whereas, while our loss has been great, yet to one who had been closest to him by the closest ties that life affords, the loss is and must be incomparably greater;

"Now, therefore, be it resolved by the Commercial club of Daytona that the heartfelt sympathy of this organization and of each of its members be extended to his wife, Mary T. Burgoyne, in this, her hour of tribulation and sorrow, realizing, however, that sympathy, no matter how sincere, is inadequate to mitigate the suffering caused by the loss of a beloved husband; assuring her that her loss is also ours; that we mourn the loss of C. G. Burgoyne, not as a philanthropist, but as a beloved citizen, not as a generous donor, but as a man whose heart was filled with love towards his fellow men; a man whose sole aim and purpose in life seemed to be to make happier those with whom he came in contact, and to provide for the comfort of the strangers within our midst; a man universally beloved, not for what he did, but for what he was."

"Be it further resolved that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the Commercial club, and that a copy suitably engrossed be transmitted to Mary T. Burgoyne."

Democratic Triumph.
The walking-stick, as we know it at present, gained its popularity in France during the eighteenth century, when it came to be carried by rich people who had no right to wear a sword. The dandies twirled a thin cane in their fingers, but the great financiers—who had considerable influence at that time—made the stick a fashionable addition to their wardrobe, and sometimes paid as much as 10,000 crowns for one. This carrying of a walking-stick was regarded as a democratic triumph over the nobility, who refused the common right to wear a sword.—London Chronicle.

"DIPLOMACY" WILL BE SEEN AT THE CRYSTAL THURSDAY
Marie Doro, the exquisite star whose previous screen appearances in "The Morals of Marcus" and "The White Pearl," have distinguished her as one of the most fascinating film favorites of the day, surpasses all her former stage or screen achievements in the Famous Players-Charles Frohman company's picturization of Sardou's great drama of foreign political intrigue, "Diplomacy"—in the stage presentation of which, as co-star with William Gillette and Blanche Bates, Miss Doro won a notable personal triumph. Suspected by her husband, a young diplomat, of stealing from his dispatch box the plans of the Gibraltar fortifications, Doro (the role assumed by Miss Doro) portrays with infinite skill and fear, anger, hate and despair which result from the accusation. The screen version attaches added interest by the fact that the young diplomat is played by Elliott Dexter, Marie Doro's husband.

This, one of the greatest international dramas exhibited to date, will be an entertaining feature shown at the Crystal tomorrow.

Naturally So.

"JEWEL" WILL BE SHOWN AT CRESCENT THURSDAY
"Jewel" is a child's play for grown-ups, of infinite tenderness and charm. It is dainty, sweet and humorous; it makes one cry one minute and laugh the next, although the laugh always borders close on tears. Little "Jewel" comes into a household containing the "worst afraid" and "sorriest" woman in the world; a gruff, soured old codger, and a mercenary mother and daughter. The settings of the play are those of great wealth.

Little "Jewel," the twelve-year-old girl, transforms this household of scheming intrigue which lies "under the shadow of hatred" into a haven of warmth and love and tenderness. One feels that he is peeping into the hearts and home life of a real family. No trains leap over precipices with the loss of hundreds of lives in "Jewel," but at a showing of the film in the Broadway theatre, New York, before an audience of hardened film reviewers, there was not a dry eye at the conclusion of the picture. There were some, perhaps, a little over enthusiastic, who declared that "Jewel" was a better picture than "Cabiria," "Quo Vadis" and "The Birth of a Nation" rolled into one.

The Crescent theatre has arranged to play this wonderful picture Thursday and, although Mary Pickford's role in "Poor Little Peppina" shown recently at this picture house and repeated at the Crystal, drew capacity houses at both theatres, little Miss Ella Hall, universally acknowledged as one of the most versatile of screen performers, carrying the leading role in "Jewel" in this Universal feature play, will no doubt draw good crowds.

Largest English Oak.
The largest oak tree now left standing in England is "Cowthorpe's Oak," which is 78 feet in circumference at the ground. The oldest tree in Britain is Parliamentary oak, in Clipstone park, London, which is known to be 1,500 years old.

Naturally So.
Did you see where a ship was held up in our ports because it had a cargo of false teeth for Germany?" Now, mustn't that have made the consignors look down in the mouth?"

Turpentine and Vaseline.
Equally effective and probably more convenient to apply than the familiar mustard plaster is a mixture of equal quantities of vaseline and turpentine, the vaseline melted in a saucepan over the fire and mixed well with the turpentine. It should be applied warm and rubbed well into the skin, the clothing being protected, as the liniment leaves an oily stain.

His Point of View.
"What do you think about national preparedness?" asked the militant person. "I dare say it's a very good thing for a nation," replied Mr. Twobble, thoughtfully, "but in my relations with Mrs. Twobble, I find a policy of non-resistance more conducive to peace and harmony in the family circle."

When Rug Curls.
When small rugs curl, grate beeswax or spermaceti over the underside of the rug at the corners and press with a warm iron. This tends to stiffen the corners and in no way will the wax or spermaceti injure the floor, since it soaks into the coarse threads of the rug.

Had to Cater to All.
"I don't like the way this hotel is run!" carpored a peevish young travelling salesman. "Neither do I," replied the landlord of Pruntyn's tavern; "but I've got to entertain all the fools that come along as well as the sensible people."—Judge.

NO CHANGE PROBABLE IN NAME OF BEACH ST.
Tuesday a petition was circulated along Beach street asking the city commissioners to change the name of the street to "Burgoyne Way." The matter was brought up for discussion at the meeting of the Commercial club Tuesday evening and that organization went on record as being opposed to the change, deeming such a testimonial to the memory of the benefactor of Daytona as too insignificant.

AMERICAN TROOPS, SEEKING VILLA, LONG ANXIOUS TO CROSS BORDER

Entire Nation Supports President in Determination to Get Outlaw, Dead or Alive.

Tedious Task Ahead, but It Is Not Expected to Take Years to End the Reign of Lawlessness.

WHEN President Wilson ordered the United States army to cross the Mexican border and avenge the death of Americans the nation almost to a man unanimously arose and put its strength and hearty support squarely behind the president. There was not a word of objection heard on any side. The patience of the American people had been sorely tested until it could resist no longer. "Villa dead or Villa alive"—that was the motto of the troops who had long been on the border. They were anxious to get Villa and had been wishing about 8,000 cavalrymen distributed along the border and about 4,000 at other stations in the United States.

The army has only six field artillery regiments, and only two of these are mountain artillery—the Second and the Fourth. The Second field artillery (mountain) is in the Philippine Islands. Only the Fourth field artillery (mountain) is in the United States. The entire regiment of the Fourth field artillery is at Fort Bliss, El Paso, except Battery D, which is at Progresso, Tex. In the column which is expected to move from El Paso toward the Laguna region of Chihuahua the Fourth field States exclusive of the coast artillery corps. None of the plans includes a proposal to disturb any of the coast artillery corps.

Army officers consider it highly indiscreet even to consider the removal of any of the already short consignments of men from the coast artillery division because of the general international situation. In the event that it is necessary to send more men to the border than are now available in the mobile army it is probable that some of the cavalry regiments of the militia may be called upon.

Secrecy on Operations.

Secrecy will be maintained by the general staff as to the movements of troops in pursuit of Villa. General Funston, who has shown that he is aware of the necessity for concealing such military information, is expected to maintain a rigid censorship when the punitive expedition enters upon its real campaign.

Preparations for the larger scope of the expedition include arrangements to enlist the national guard for patrolling the border. Of the 120,000 in the militia it is estimated that from 30 to 50 per cent can be raised for that purpose. This will allow of the use of from 20,000 to 30,000 troops in Mexico at an early stage of the campaign if the situation develops as is now ex-

Photos by American Press Association.

UNITED STATES CAVALRY ON BORDER. 2.—COLONEL HERBERT J. SLOCUM. 3.—PANCHO VILLA. 4.—GENERAL FREDERICK FUNSTON.

This opportunity for many months is significant to note just here, however, that when the men returned to American soil after having crossed the border in pursuit of the bandits who had shot up Columbus, N. M., one of them remarked, "We took no prisoners."

Purely Punitive Expedition.

The sovereignty of Mexico will not be affected. The expedition is purely punitive one, and this country is not at war on any one except the bandits who have for years committed robbery, murder, looted and fought for a living. The masses of people in Mexico have been ruled by bandits.

The United States is going to free the poor Mexicans and give them opportunity to earn a living for themselves without the risk of having their property stolen and the thieves going unpunished.

Provisional President Carranza is expected to co-operate with the United States army and him in his band from the south.

Carranza was not consulted before the orders to get Villa were issued.

It is not going to be such an easy task to get Villa. Army men agree with the bandits, but fear that Villa will disperse and hide out in the fastnesses of the mountains and take shots at our men. The supply of ammunition in Villa's hands is known to be scanty, and it is believed he will exhaust it. One of the most interesting features of the expedition is the part played by our aviators. It is suspected that scouting machines have been sent over the hills in the efforts to find Villa's hiding places.

The expedition is mainly a cavalry affair. The infantry could not cover territory rapidly enough. There were artillery is expected to be one of the units. Some, if not all, of the Sixth field artillery may be sent. This is light horse artillery, and its guns are howitzers of the 4.7 inch type. The gunners are mounted on horses and could traverse the country handily. Howitzers would be more available than the 3.2 inch rapid fire guns with which the First, Third and Fifth field artillery regiments are equipped. The First field artillery is stationed at Hawaii, and the Fifth field artillery, except Battery A, at Fort Bliss, Texas, is at Fort Sill, Oklahoma.

President Wilson is commander in chief of the army. The ranking officer next to General Frederick Funston in the southern division is Brigadier General John J. Pershing. Other high officers of the border patrol and the troops they command are:

First cavalry brigade, Brigadier General James Parker, commanding; headquarters at Fort Sam Houston.

Second cavalry brigade, Colonel George A. Dodd, commanding; headquarters at Douglas, Ariz.

Second infantry brigade, Brigadier General Robert K. Evans, commanding; headquarters at Laredo, Tex.

Fifth infantry brigade, Brigadier General George Bell, Jr., commanding; headquarters at San Antonio, Tex.

Sixth infantry brigade, Brigadier General Thomas F. Davis, commanding; headquarters at Douglas, Ariz.

Eighth infantry brigade, Brigadier General John J. Pershing, commanding; headquarters at Camp Fort Bliss, El Paso, Tex.

General Pershing commands the troops in the field.

The offhand opinion of officers of the general staff was that at least five regiments of cavalry and one regiment of mountain artillery should be combined in one force under General Pershing. Some of the older officers favored a division which would represent approximately 12,000 men and 700 officers.

There are at present approximately 19,000 men on the border and 15,000 other mobile troops in the United States. Portions of the coast artillery will be available. A call for volunteers is not the remotest idea engaging the attention of the general staff.

Barring the capture of Villa by a "stroke of luck" which would reduce the punitive plans of the government to something in the nature of a cursory invasion to disperse surviving Villistas, the general staff has to plan for the hemming in of northern Mexico. The Atlantic and Pacific oceans will do well enough to hem in that territory on the east and west. The national guard is entirely equal to the necessity of patrolling the border and assisting in keeping open the lines of communication for the troops advancing south.

What's Villa going to do? Presumably he is not going to trail with more than a few followers when he is hard pressed. He may travel for awhile and finally with half a dozen he can trust not to betray him. When he has reduced his force to that number he will have confronted the general staff with a needle in the haystack problem.

Needle In Haystack Problems.

Finding the needle—or the bumblebee—ought not to be an endless matter. There isn't a man who knows northern Mexico but believes that Funston is equal to it. "It may be a game of hide and seek with a lot of casualties mixed in," say men from that country, "but Funston will find what he is after."

It is possible to overestimate the matter in hand, as it is possible to underestimate it. Take the problem involved. If the ring is made around northern Mexico or even if it hasn't been made and Villa has taken to the mountains. The Mexicans are poor fighters except of a sort. They have a limited supply of ammunition. They are not good shots.

"Howsoever, I don't know whether it was or whether it wasn't. What I do know is this: Five years after all this happened I was on a coaster and one evenin' was lookout while roundin' Cape Cod. It was between daylight and dark, and there was a thin mist. I'd been without much sleep for a couple of nights in bad weather and was a trifle drowsy. I nodded between sleepin' and wakin', and on openin' my blinkers there, down in the water off the port bow, was a boat with a leg-o'-mutton sail and a man at the tiller. There wasn't enough wind to stir the mist, but the sail was full.

"But the man sailin' her. He looked up at me, and if I hadn't been held by canvas I'd fell down on to the leek. He was the cap'n o' the pirate we'd chuck overboard in the Indian ocean five years before."

"I never seen such awful sufferin' on any face. He didn't move his lips. He just kept them turrible eyes on me, turnin' his head as we passed till he disappeared in the mist astern."

"Then I remembered when he was about to sail for the big ocean what he said, 'You kin pitch me into the brine, but I won't rest there,' and what he said about havin' been born and once been respectable on the New England coast, and all that. And it struck me that the cap'n's ghost was a-sailin' around the place of his birth, but couldn't land."

"How did you know?" asked one of the listeners, "when you dumped him that he was dead?"

A Sea Yarn

By JOHN Y. LARNED

At the Sailors' home a number of old salts, the youngest of whom was over seventy, were sunning themselves when one said to another:

"Bill, how did y' git that scar on yer forehead?"

"I didn't suffer from the wound that left that scar nothing like the man that give it to me. That's a yarn about that scar."

"Spin it."

"When I was a young feller more'n fifty year ago, I shipped in a brigantine for a China voyage. We had bad luck for weather, the cap'n got sick, and when we got to Hongkong he died. The owners decided to sell the ship and the crew was discharged, to shift for themselves. It was starvation for us or findin' some sort o' berth. Me and Jim Hughes and Tom Hawkins found a berth with an American who was makin' up a crew for a small schooner rugged vessel to trade between China and Japan, and signed one evenin' in a sailors' boardin' house without even seein' the ship or the rest o' the crew. I didn't want to sign them articles, but Tom said we couln't help ourselves. The cut o' the cap'n's job didn't suit me at all. There was somethin' wicked in his eye, and I was afraid he'd be tyrannical."

"He tuk us aboard at night and put us in our bunks, tellin' us to rest ourselves, for we wouldn't be needed till mornin'. This looked mighty kind of him, but when mornin' came we saw what it meant. We'd sailed durin' the night and was out o' sight o' land. When we went on deck there was the worst cutthroat crew y' ever see, made up of Malays, Chinamen, Japs and every other copper colored devil in that hemisphere."

"The cap'n didn't make no bones about it. He said the ship was a pirate, and what he wanted of us was a first and second mate, seein' there wa'n't no intelligence in the crew for such a purpose. He give us our choice to take the places or walk the plank. In course we took the places, for while we was alive there was hope of gettin' away, and if we was dead that ended it."

"The cap'n told the crew that Tom and I understood navigation and was competent sailors. So he had the crew back of him. We knowed that on the fust sign o' mutiny we'd be cut down, and we didn't show no sich sign. The wust thing about it was that a white man was in command of yellow devils and had forced two other white men to be his officers."

"The fust ship we tuk I managed to communicate with the captured crew and led 'em down to where arms was stored. Then we all turned on the cutthroats that rushed after us and, a-fightin' for every inch, slowly drove 'em back on deck, and by this time they'd got so thinned and demoralized that they began to try to lower the boats and git away. Some o' em did, but the balance we either finished on the deck or they went over the side to drown."

"Durin' the fight the cap'n made for me with a cutlass and give me the blow that left that scar. He was run through the vitals by Tom Hawkins and lived about six hours. Knownin' that he was goin' to die, a big change came over him. He realized what he'd been doin'—a white man runnin' a lot o' cutthroats. 'I've committed an unpardonable sin,' he says, 'and I'm a-goin' to suffer for it forever. You kin pitch me into the brine, but I won't rest there. Oh, for a grave on the coast o' New England, where I was born and was respected! It was a desire to go back there rich that led me to hoist the skull and bones. My old mother lives there now, and if she knew what I'd done—'

"His voice died out by this time, and purty soon there was a gurgle in his throat, and he was dead. We chuck him overboard, and that was the end o' him for this world."

"Howsomever, I don't know whether it was or whether it wasn't. What I do know is this: Five years after all this happened I was on a coaster and one evenin' was lookout while roundin' Cape Cod. It was between daylight and dark, and there was a thin mist. I'd been without much sleep for a couple of nights in bad weather and was a trifle drowsy. "We embarked on the gunboat Vicksburg and landed on March 14 at 2 o'clock in the morning. The expedition was nominally placed in command of Hilario Placido, ex-insurgent colonel. After marching twenty miles we reached the town of Casiguran. We had sent word to the presidente of the town through native messengers that re-enforcements for Aguinaldo were on the way through his town. The presidente was completely deceived. My troops had captured some months ago some official paper of General Lacuna, bearing his official stamp and seal. In order to make the deception all the more complete we succeeded in forging the signature of Lacuna to letters to Aguinaldo. These letters were sent ahead, and we followed.

"The trip to Aguinaldo's camp was a most severe one upon the men. Our food supply was entirely exhausted, and my men were so weak that when we reached within eight miles of Aguinaldo's camp we could go no farther.

Got Food From Aguinaldo.

"We therefore sent a messenger ahead to Aguinaldo's camp, informing him of our plight and requesting that he send us food before we could go farther. This was supplied, and the disguise and ruse adopted by us had been complete. As we had told Aguinaldo that we had American prisoners, he sent word that they be given their liberty.

"As the Maccabees approached the town of the troops of Aguinaldo's bodyguard, consisting of fifty men, were drawn up in parade to receive the supposed re-enforcements. The men who posed as officers of our expedition marched into the camp and paid their respects to Aguinaldo, who received them in a large house built on the bank of the Palawan river.

"After the exchange of courtesies the officers excused themselves from Aguinaldo and his staff for a moment, stepped outside and ordered their Maccabee troops drawn up into line and commanded them to commence firing into the insurgents was complete. The ex-insurgent officers, the five Americans and several Maccabee scouts immediately made rush for the house which was used as Aguinaldo's headquarters and took him prisoner.

"Aguinaldo when first taken prisoner raved and swore at the deception practiced upon him, but later accepted the situation with dignity."

Native Soldiers Helped Him.

"Then and there I conceived the idea of arming and equipping a number of native troops to pass off as these expected re-enforcements and to make an endeavor to trap Aguinaldo in his lair. The expedition was made up of four Tagalogs, who were formerly commanding officers in Aguinaldo's army, and who selected seventy-eight men of the Maccabee scouts, all of whom could talk the Tagalo. I obtained a number of captured insurgents' uniforms, and ten Maccabees

STUDENTS AND FACULTY
EXPRESS THEIR THANKS

The pupils and faculty of the Seabreeze-Daytona Beach public school wish to express their appreciation to the following ladies and gentlemen who so generously contributed prizes for the winners in the various athletic contests on their "Field Day." Messrs. J. Thompson, H. T. M. Tregown, E. B. Putnam, J. B. Strother, R. C. Watson, J. L. Wetherby, L. W. Lott, S. Haigh, C. W. Elder, R. S. Holmes, E. H. Webster, Daytona Beach Grocery company, H. E. Pence, Towne Grocery company.

Workmen have been engaged in sodding the G. G. Allen property on the corner of Grandview avenue and Ocean boulevard, in Seabreeze. By the close of the summer Mr. Allen will have a beautiful green lawn. A. Vande Vorde has completed the cement drive in the rear of the new residence and is now constructing a cement garage.

Mr. and Mrs. Wight, who have been living fort he winter in their cottage on Live Oak street, in Daytona Beach, left Monday morning for their home in the state of Maine. After a delightful season they found it difficult to return north.

The Cordis cottage on the corner of Peninsula drive and Butler boulevard in Seabreeze is now being repaired.

For several years this property has been in a more or less dilapidated condition owing to lack of care by the owners. It will receive a fresh coat of paint as well as other needed repairs.

The next social to be held by the members of the Daytona Beach Library association on the afternoon of Wednesday, April 12th, at the home of Mrs. U. S. Shelly, on Grandview avenue, in Seabreeze, instead of at the G. P. Johnson home, as was at first planned.

Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Reed and baby arrived Sunday from their home in Savannah to visit at the home of their father, J. L. Reed, on Grandview avenue, Daytona Beach, for an indefinite time.

A sidewalk is being laid by A. Vande Vorde along two lots on the west side of Grandview avenue between Duke street and Earl, in Seabreeze.
